

PRETTY SCHOOL GIRL FOUND DEAD WITH BULLET HOLE IN HER BREAST

ELSIE HENTHORNE, 13, VICTIM OF A DEPRAVED WRETCH WHO IS NOW IN JAIL CHARGED WITH HEINOUS CRIME

Donald Moreland, 28, a Widower, Whose Home is at Etna, Must Face Charge of First Degree Murder

DIED FIGHTING BRUTE IN DEFENSE OF HER HONOR

Little Victim Resided With Mother Near Pataskala and Was Found Cold in Death By Samuel Fravel, a Merchant of That Village---Advocate Representative on Scene of Crime Shortly After Terrible Affair Occurred.

Cruel, relentless, brutal murder stalked abroad in Licking county Thursday afternoon, and grim-visaged Moloch, "horrid king, besmeared with blood and parents' tears," demanded as his victim innocent childhood at the hands of his high priest Bacchus, and even his demands were fully satisfied in the death of little Elsie Henthorne, a bright, pretty school girl of Lima township, about two and one-half miles northwest of Pataskala, at the hands of an arch fiend, Don Moreland, a widower, 28 years old, who has lived in that neighborhood for a long time, and bears the reputation of being a vicious character, worthless in his habits of life, and having instincts of brutal, cunning criminality.

The details of the horrible crime are harrowing as far as they are known, but as there were no eyewitnesses some of them will never be known, but every circumstance tends to show that the child lost her life in the defense of her sacred honor, dearer to her in the innocence of budding womanhood than her very heart's blood, which was shed in attempting futilely to protect herself from the unspeakable designs of a lecherous, whiskey-crazed fiend incarnate.

What could be the result of the unequal struggle between her and her assailant? Physically she was frail and yet she was spurred to a valor that lent her super human strength, which she used against that of a burly brute whose muscles were fired with an unholy passion. Nobly she fought with the courage and desperation of innocence when threatened with black guilt, and there were only two alternatives, submission or death. Without a thought she chose the latter, and her spirit in all its purity was ushered into the presence of the God who gave it.

There are times when language is incapable of expressing the horror of a crime against purity and innocence, and even the mind rebels at framing and harboring thoughts concerning it, and the murder of pretty Elsie Henthorne is one of them. It is frightful to contemplate, impossible of expression. The elements composing it are appetite, lust, and craven beastiality. Not a ray of light penetrates the darkness of its commission. No motive of ordinary human frailty, even magnified many times through the medium of intense provocation, natural desire, or inherent short comings, can be brought in to explain, palliate or condone. Nothing but the most depraved abnormality or criminal degeneracy, could conceive such a heinous crime even without intent or desire to commit it, and the mere recital brings the hot blood of outraged moral sensibility to flush the cheek with angry shame.

STABBINGS LEAD ADDED HONOR.

The scene of the fearful shedding of innocent blood was one calculated to bring to the normal mind thoughts of peaceful quietness instead of bloody outrage and murder.

The Robinette school house is situated in a beautiful vale, surrounded by the rolling lands of highly cultivated farms, and stands in one of the prettiest spots in Lima township, about three miles northwest of the village of Pataskala. The teacher, Miss Nellie Connell of Summit, is daily surrounded by the boys and girls of the neighboring farmers, and here there is nothing but kindly feeling, studious attention, and the surroundings generally found at a peaceful country school.

Mr. William Tharp, a jovial, kindly man, well known and respected in the neighborhood, is employed to haul the pupils in his wagon to and from the school, which is about a mile from the Henthorne home, toward Pataskala, but little Elsie always walked the distance both ways.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Connell dismissed her school as usual and not a thought of the impending doom of one of her most highly regarded and brightest pupils, disturbed either teacher or laughing, playful scholars. Mr. Tharp took those in his wagon whom he was to deliver to their homes and the others separated to go in different directions. All was happiness and pleasurable content on the part of instructor and learners over another day's work successfully done and keen anticipation of the work of the morrow. No sign of the shadow of death hovering over one, beloved of the number was seen; no premonition of a cruel fate was felt and with cheery good byes they separated.

The scene changes and the stage is set in sombre colors, with Passion, Lust and Death, occupying the center in a fatal trilogy.

LECHEROUS BRUTALITY ACCOSTS INNOCENCE.

With a merry heart and child-like abandon, pretty Elsie Henthorne started to wend her way homeward, where love, kindness, protection and parents' pride awaited to give her welcome. Her work had been well done, and to prepare for another day she had taken her arithmetic, with the lesson assigned for the morrow marked in the book. This was tied about with a cord, the long ends of which were thrown about her neck, leaving the book dangling about waist high in front. Her head was swathed in a scarf tied about her neck, a heavy red coat and comfortable mittens completing her protection against the cold March blasts. Veritably a picture of healthy, happy, innocent childhood she was. Don Moreland saw her. He looked again. Ah, fatal stare. Deadly leer. Would to God they had never rested upon this bud of purity, to either blight its bloom or crush out its existence with their mephitic influences.

His lecherous blood was fired by indulgence in whiskey. Every evil passion in his depraved nature was aroused by the beautifully rounded form of the maturing child. With him the birth of a foul thought was nothing new, and the putting it into execution had heretofore been only circumscribed by lack of a favorable opportunity.

He knew the little girl; had probably spoken to her, as she was a favorite in the neighborhood. She also knew him and had a wholesome dread of him. He was a man from whom children and good women instinctively shrink. His reputation in the neighborhood was unsavory. With others of her age and younger, Don Moreland's name was a synonym for an evil genius, the nature of which she apprehended, but could not understand. Every child avoided him, all feared him and looked upon him with a feeling akin to abject terror. Now was a chance for the wolf to throttle the lamb, for vilest passion to glut itself upon purest chastity. His plan was quickly formed. He assumed the smile of beguiling kindness, which hid the leer of lecherous infamy. His pretended solicitude was to cover his anxiety for an opportunity to accomplish his hellish purposes.

Moreland asked the little girl to ride home with him, and here the story of Elsie Henthorne's life ends as far as any human being knows, for only one earthly eye saw the rest, and it can hardly be called human.

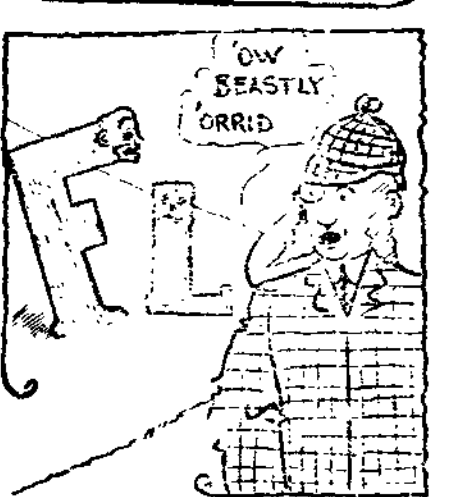

LITTLE HEROINE BATTLES FOR HER HONOR.

The next thing known was the finding of a body lying along the road about a quarter of a mile from the Henthorne home, or rather the home of the little girl's mother, Mrs. Fred Trout. About seven years ago Elsie's mother and father separated and a divorce followed. Mrs. Henthorne afterward marrying Fred Trout, a respected farm worker, employed by Clyde Moreland, an uncle of the man charged with the crime of murder, and a highly respected citizen of the community.

The body was found by Mr. Samuel Fravel, a resident of Pataskala, who had spent the afternoon in the country attending to business and was returning to town. Fravel did not recognize the body and called Mr. Elmer Parkhurst to stand guard.

OHIO STATE LIBRARY VERITABLE FIRE TRAP

Columbus, March 31.—"You will notice by reports from Albany that the New York state library was considered fireproof and that it was not the building, but the contents, that burned," said State Librarian Galbreath, Thursday.

"The library of the legislative assembly and the state library with its two million volumes and valuable manuscripts were the kind of pickled up by the eager flames. The overcrowded condition of the library, made it an especially inviting place for the fire fiend.

"Here is a lesson for other states, and especially Ohio. The crowded condition of the state library is well known. For many years the library board has called attention to this and asked for more room.

"The shelving and furniture in the library are all of wood and a fire under the eaves would change to ashes the valuable collection, much of which could not be duplicated."

PLANS TO CONTROL FINANCES

Rich Corporations Would Dominate Finances of the United States

THE MORGAN COMPANY

With Associates Said to Have Been Taking Over Number of Banking Concerns.

New York, March 31.—That it is the plan of the J. P. Morgan, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Standard Oil and allied interests to force all of the small banks and trust companies in this city out of business was indicated by the purchase of control of the Equitable Trust company, the Bank of Commerce, and other valuable properties, is the assertion made in financial circles today.

While ostensibly the purpose is to prevent the rise of the Northern and Washington banks and kindred concerns to the wall the real object is said to be the formation of a money trust which will absolutely dominate the finances of the United States. Working through the Aldrich monetary commission the financial hierarchy plans to gobble up any central bank that might be authorized by congress, and so arrange matters in the big cities that the country banks will be at its mercy for all time.

Only prompt action by the federal officials will prevent this according to well informed financiers.

At the end of the panic of 1907, J. P. Morgan found that the three financial groups which had dominated the New York banking situation for a decade were working at cross-purposes. The result was that it was necessary to settle numerous disputes before the panic could be ended. Morgan at once set out to arrange a "gentlemen's" agreement to be participated in by his own bank, the Standard Oil and the interests affiliated with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. The result was that when the Northern bank failed a few weeks ago, Morgan took control of four small banks by simply lending them the use of his name. Since then he and his associates have taken over the National Bank of Commerce and despite official denial, control of the Equitable Trust company, one of the richest trust companies in the world.

While denial has been made that the syndicate which brought the Bank of Commerce paid $6,750,000 for control to the Equitable financiers pointed out today that it was preposterous to try to make the public believe that the concern could fall into hands that would not be friendly to Morgan.

When the latter forced Thomas F. Ryan to sell him the control of the Equitable Life Assurance society, which Ryan in turn had forced from "Jimmy" Hyde, Morgan admittedly placed himself in a position to say who was to get the Equitable Trust with its $4,000,000 of resources when the assurance society was compelled to sell under the provisions of the insurance law prohibiting insurance companies remaining in the banking business.

The probable reason for the secrecy regarding the sale of the Equitable is the fear that the incoming Democratic congress will take steps to probe the money trust. Attorney General Wickersham, it was reported from Washington last night, has already decided to recommend to congress that a new law meeting the situation, which would enable him to deal with the money trust as a combination in restraint of trade be passed. But it was intimated that the Democratic leaders who will control the incoming congress are inclined to believe that a congressional investigation of the situation along the lines of the inquiry which Congressman Sherrill hopes to have ordered for the steel trust might develop enough to show just what kind of legislation is needed to keep banks and financial institutions from arranging either actual or "gentlemen's" agreements.

Just how serious the big banking interests consider the danger of federal interference is shown by the retention of James M. Beck, former assistant attorney general of the United States, to act as their counsel. It is understood that a mass of evidence showing that the clearing house has adopted absolutely dictatorial methods in dealing with banks considered unfriendly to the combine is already in the hands of the department of justice.

DESPONDENT YOUNG MAN ATTEMPTED SUICIDE BY CARBOLIC ACID ROUTE

Samuel Yoder, a well known young man, who came here some time ago from Marysville, O., and who has been employed as a fireman on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, made a desperate attempt Thursday night at suicide by the carbolic acid route.

It seems from all the facts obtainable that Yoder, who is aged about twenty-two or twenty-three years, has been in the "dumps" for the past several days. Thursday evening he left his boarding house on South Fifth street, and stated up town. Some time later, it is reported that he was seen in the red light district on Walnut street, and that he had had some trouble with a girl in one of the resorts, after which he left and started east on Walnut street. Here he made his way to the space occupied by the watchman's house, and when quite near it swallowed a large quantity of carbolic acid, estimated to be about an ounce. Immediately upon swallowing the poison he fell to the ground, where his evanescence attracted attention, and a hurry call was sent in for the patrol wagon. There was a quick response, and the man was rushed to the Sanitarium, where Dr. H. B. Anderson was summoned. The doctor, on his arrival, was quick to grasp the situation and with the assistance of those at the Sanitarium did everything in his power for the relief of the man. He was given a stomach wash and inward applications of fifty per cent alcohol to neutralize the effects of the carbolic acid.

The doctor worked with the man for several hours when the treatment began to have its effect and Yoder showed signs of improvement which continued throughout the night.

Friday morning the patient's lips and tongue showed that he was badly burned by the poison, but that the prospects are very favorable for his speedy recovery.

MEASURE PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Oregon Plan of Electing U. S. Senators Has Big Majority

DEBATE WAS VERY SHORT

Representative Fulton Will Introduce Two Gerrymander Bills Some Time Next Week.

Columbus, March 31.—Under the name of Wyman the House, yesterday, in an hour, passed the bill applying to Ohio the Oregon plan of electing United States senators, which, under the name of Stockwell, has been a bone of contention in the senate for three months.

In the senate six of the twenty Democratic senators have been arrayed against the measure, despite strong pressure by Governor Harmon. In the House only three Democrats out of 70 opposed the bill, for of the few absentees on the majority side none would have voted against it.

Not a single Republican spoke against the bill. The only member who did declaim against it was a Democrat, Mahlon Gebhardt of Dayton.

The bill passed by a vote of 89 to 13. Those who opposed the bill were Colter of Lucas, Davidson of Columbiana, Jones of Franklin, Lamb of Chilton, Meinhardt of Hamilton, Morris of Van Wert, Reid of Fayette, Riddle of Logan, Sprigle of Hamilton, Wilber of Union. Republicans: the three Montgomery county members, Gebhardt, Donson and Roth, Democrats.

The Democratic opposition came solely from the representatives of the county of State Chairman Edward W. Hanley, who was defeated for United States Senator by Alice Pomeroy, who declared for the Oregon plan. The Republicans cast 29 votes for the bill and 10 against it.

Alexander, Baeschler, Evans of Cuyahoga, Friebolin, Harmon, McWilliams, Porock, Sawicki, Smith of Butler, Smith of Marion, Smith of Muskingum, Thomas, Winters, Zumstein, Speaker Vining, either were absent or did not vote. All other members, 59 Democrats, 29 Republicans, 1 Independent, voted for the bill.

RESTRICTS CORPORATE POWERS.

The far reaching Evans bill forbidding foreign corporations doing anything in Ohio they may not do in the state in which they are chartered, was reported to the house yesterday. So were the Woodward bill to employ convicts in building roads and bridges and working quarries, amended to forbid selling surplus crushed stone to private users, and the Shaffer woman's reformatory bill.

The Kennedy bank fee bill, previously lost, was reconsidered and put on the calendar.

VINING OFF TO WASHINGTON.

Speaker Vining left last night for Washington. It is understood he went to help ex-congressman Robert Gordon of Wapakoneta in his contest for the place of postmaster of the house.

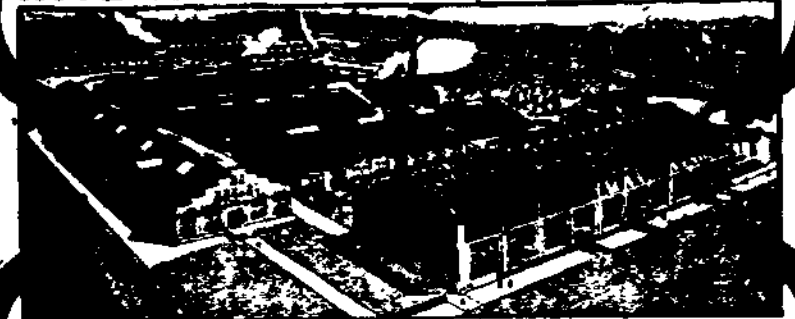

Bob Gordon managed Vining's campaign for speaker, and the speaker will

FORCED GIRLS TO PARADE IN THEIR NIGHTIES

Spokane, Wash., March 31.—The student body of Washington State college is today on a strike with sentries at every class room to prevent classes, following a raid on the girls' dormitory the other night when several marauders broke in, smashed up the girls beds and compelled the girls to parade through the corridors in their night clothes. The faculty is conducting a rigid investigation, but seem to be getting nowhere. The students say there will be no classes until the perpetrators are expelled.

A VISIT TO SPAIN

(By Miss Mary A. Sprague.)

San Remo, Italy, March 14.—Paris had been grey all winter. But as Paris makes no specialty of skies, we had not noticed this defect till we heard that a party of friends would shortly arrive at Gibraltar to spend a fortnight in sunny Spain. Could we not join them in this jaunt? We recalled the Alhambra, the Barber of Seville and the name Andalusia and answered that we could.

On purchasing our tickets and reducing kilometers to miles we found that the journey was of some length, like going from Ohio to the Pacific coast, but having the start of the ocean voyagers we hoped to see much by the way. This means traveling by daylight. When I venture into a new country my interest in the country itself is beyond my enjoyment of its relics or its art. Six or eight hours a day are not long enough to look from the window of a comfortable compartment nor when night comes do I wish to be carried past scenes of equal promise. So we planned for frequent stops.

Paris was wrapped in fog when we left the Quai d'Orsay on the afternoon of January 24th and the fog continued till we reached Bordeaux eight hours later. Associating this city with Col. Crawford I looked the next morning for those strings of horses which he is said to embark at this port and which later find their feet in front of my door but although we drove quite round the docks I failed to see them, nor was he himself in the breakfast room of our hotel.

From noon till nightfall we were again in the train passing through that part of France known as the midi, a flat and sodden country. Mile after mile of it was covered with a wild growth of young pines and other useless young trees planted with rows of pines for the manufacture of pitch and turpentine. These artificial forests with the trees deeply scored to the height of ten feet suggested sugar camps. In many places the brown branches beneath them had been cut and stacked like haystacks, for what purpose I could not guess. In fact, I find it unsafe to guess at anything I see. For instance, all through this region the work was done by small light-colored oxen. They were attached to two-wheeled carts and were the pride of every highway. As our train moved at about their pace I noticed their shaggy heads with locks falling to their eyes and over their necks, and in long tufts below their horns. They seemed to me a new breed with heads like the shaggy stock of Scotland and the bodies of ordinary short haired cattle.

But on arriving at Baizritz I noticed quite a crop of red flannel in conjunction with these tufts. This could hardly have grown there even in the Duke of Athos's herd, and on closer inspection I found the whole thing a decorative headress made of goat skin.

Baizritz was a convenient resting place for our second night—a seaside resort made fashionable by Eugenie, and upheld by King Edward and lesser royalties. The present king of Spain courted the Princess Eua here and older crowned heads come to seek forgetfulness of their successes in that direction. It was but a rock-bound fishing port when Eugenie discovered it as she came and went between her native Spain and her adopted France. But the surf rolled joyously in from the Bay of Biscay and she built a palace upon a headland overlooking the beach. It is now a great hotel and she comes no more. Elsewhere in France she is regarded as a lonely ghostly figure still wandering afield. In Paris she is spoken of as responsible for Sedan and the German occupation—a person who fled none too soon from a just wrath. But in Baizritz she has already reached the goal where so many French outcasts ultimately arrive, and a new church and square planted with tamarisks are dedicated to Sainte Eugenie. On the other hand King Edward is still a living personality. His death, a fortnight after leaving this resort, is all but overlooked. This picture in active exercise upon the beach is in every prospectus setting forth the attractions of Baizritz. Links, meads, matches and the aerodrome still expect him and the English hotel where we were he was referred to as our king, as if his coat still hung upon the rack. It is not my fault that here as elsewhere on the French coast the beach is called the Grande Plage. On the day we spent there a further suggestion of colds was in the air and we were glad to take refuge in the Casino, where a concert was in progress, and where, when the music was over, roulette tables were set spinning in the entrance hall.

At Cook & Sons we exchanged our French money for Spanish, receiving a premium of seven per cent. For American money nine per cent was offered. A further detail was the purchase of a time table and railroad map, these folders not being gratis, as with us. This completed our preparations for Spain and with a last look at this jagged coast we resumed our journey the following morning, a ride of twelve hours before us.

At Irún, the frontier station where our luggage was examined, large halstons began to fall. They were rebounded from an indignant earth, but, persisting, soon covered the ground. Nevertheless we enjoyed a comfortable ride skirting the Bay of Biscay as far as San Sebastian and thence southward through the Pyrenees. Like Switzerland this Basque country looked green and thrifty. Tall smokestacks rose in some of the villages and in lonely valleys where waterfalls supplied power for machinery. The afternoon waned into night, leaving the impression of a prosperous country. Then we saw nothing more till the electric lights of Burgos disclosed deserted streets lightly covered with snow.

Heart and Home Talks

by Barbara Boyd

About the Children.

Shielding Children Too Much.

A WOMAN was complaining bitterly of her childhood. She said it had been too sheltered. She was a woman of refinement and education, and no longer young so that she had the right perspective. She was qualified to speak and her opinion is worth consideration.

As a child, she was sheltered as far as possible from all knowledge of evil. She was not allowed to go to amusements her parents did not approve—and they went to extremes in this matter. She was not allowed to read anything they had not passed upon. She received her education from teachers in the home. Her friends were chosen for her. She was really brought up in an unreal world. When the time came, as it always does come, when she had to go out into the real world, she had an entirely wrong conception of it. She had to unlearn much that had been taught her, and such disillusionment in youth is apt to sap the whole foundation of one's beliefs. She had, furthermore, to learn many necessary lessons at a time when her parents were not at hand to advise and encourage. She says she thinks such a system is altogether wrong and does more harm than good.

Many parents pursue this method in bringing up their children, not perhaps to the extremes to which these parents went. But the principle involved is the same. They do not want to soil the childish mind, they say, with the knowledge of evil. Is this wise or not? Can children be shielded in this matter too much?

It is an old, old question. It touches upon problems outside of the confines of childhood. Should or should not certain plays be put upon the stage? Should or should not certain books be published? It is a question being asked in many forms, every day as time rolls on. How is it to be answered?

What is the fundamental idea under it all? Isn't it to prevent the young people not only from knowing evil, but chiefly from doing evil? We are anxious that they shall not do wrong so that they will not suffer the consequences of wrong-doing. But is shielding them from a knowledge of evil the best way to achieve this result? If they could be fenced in all their lives from evil, if they were to live on a desert island where there might be no opportunity to do evil, the play might work. But they must sometime or other go out into a very real world. Saloons are on many corners. Men there are to lure women, and women to lure men. Plays are on the stage and books on the counters that excite curiosity to know more. Will absolute ignorance of all these things be a shield or will it be a pitfall?

Men and women have a large amount of curiosity. The unknown lures. By letting them know fully the character of the evil in the world into which they are going, and what this evil leads to, and setting up in contrast the good and what this brings, isn't one really training them better than by keeping the knowledge of evil from them? But, mind you, let them know fully, so there is nothing left for curiosity to feed upon; and let them know in a commonsense, practical way, not in some beautiful ethical fashion that is far away from actual facts. And when the evil has been fully pointed out and the good as graphically but factually drawn, make the appeal to the manhood or womanhood within them to help stamp out the evil and uphold the good. Suppose a play does picture some immoral condition, is it best to shut one's eyes and say such a play should not be put on? Is it not better to take the hint and go to work to stamp out the condition the play has pictured? It is the same with the children. Is it not better for them and the world to point out the evil and make them, when they shall have come to manhood and womanhood, ready to fight it, than to leave them to grapple with it, when they do meet it, in utter ignorance? For meet it they will. Surely knowledge of it and of how to handle it is the wisest course both for them and for the advancement of the world.

AFTER-EFFECTS OF ACUTE FEVERS

Man a Chronic Invalid.

It Was Not Until He Tried the Tonic Treatment That His Health Was Restored.

Many whose health has been wrecked by an attack of typhoid, scarlet or malarial fever or of the grip, will be interested in the manner in which one sufferer found relief from the condition in which the acute attack left him. Mr. D. A. Keplari, now living at No. 211 Richmond street, Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "About six years ago I had typhoid fever while working in a lumber camp near Altoona, Pa. The disease left my bowels in such a condition that the doctors told me I could not be cured. My bowels were inactive and bloated. I had to take strong laxatives all of the time but even that did not give me relief. My appetite was good but what I ate distressed me. I was dizzy and frequently would topple over while walking along the streets."

I was treated by several doctors and tried many kinds of medicines but nothing helped me until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I gave them a good trial with the result that my bowels became regular. My blood soon became in good condition and I have been well ever since.

The symptoms shown when the health is wrecked by the attack of an acute disease differ in almost every case but the condition is one which calls emphatically for a tonic for the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine for this purpose for they act directly on the blood which they cleanse of all impurities.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured anemia, rheumatism, sciatica, nervousness, after-effects of the grip and fevers, and neuralgia, owing to their blood-building property. These pills were originally a prescription used in the doctor's private practice and their benefit to mankind has been increased many thousand-fold by their being placed on general sale with the doctor's own directions for use.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes $2.50, by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Our luggage was examined, large hal-
stons began to fall. They were rebounded from an indignant earth, but, persisting, soon covered the ground. Nevertheless we enjoyed a comfortable ride skirting the Bay of Biscay as far as San Sebastian and thence southward through the Pyrenees. Like Switzerland this Basque country looked green and thrifty. Tall smokestacks rose in some of the villages and in lonely valleys where waterfalls supplied power for machinery. The afternoon waned into night, leaving the impression of a prosperous country. Then we saw nothing more till the electric lights of Burgos disclosed deserted streets lightly covered with snow.

Burgos was the Gothic capital of Old Castile when the Moors held all the south. There are interesting things to see there which we looked at on postal cards as we sat over our coffee. The fine snow was still whirling about in gusts, but summoning courage later we ventured out. As usual in Spain Burgos is built along the stony emptiness of an ill-fed river, but its walled banks were parked with plain trees and the houses on either side were attractive homes. On the plazas arcades covered the sidewalks and the stories above presented an unusual, vitreous appearance. Each window had its balcony enclosed with extra sash, like a storm door, till the whole street shone with glass. It is a winter arrangement calculated to catch all rays from the sun and is the only method of heating the houses.

The Cathedral of Burgos is justly said to be one of the marvels of Gothic architecture and was continuously building from 1221 to 1730, with still more recent repairs. So I suppose the scaffolding which now obscures a portion of it has hung about it from a remote period. Burgos is furthermore the home of the Cid a still more marvellous Gothic production. He is known here as Rodrigo de Vivar, nicknamed the Cid or el Cid, his remains repose in the town hall. His biography yields many fine sentiments besides deeds of valor and with him begins that web of fable which has ever since confounded all truth in Spain. Among other things it is told of him that once when hard pressed in Burgos he filled two coffers with gold and summoning a Jewish merchant offered them as security for a loan. And such was the faith in his word that the gold was given him without opening the coffers and he sped away with it on the noble career of a knighterrant. One of these coffers is shown in the Cathedral and we were led by a solemn Sacristan to see it. It hangs upon a wall and like proper visitors, we gazed upward without a smile.

Upon leaving our hotel trouble arose with the horses, the excuse being that they were afraid of the snow. A company of soldiers came out of the barracks opposite to see us start. The whole force of the stables lent a hand with temporary success. Unfortunately another stop was made for other passengers and the difficulty recurred. Then with one horse beneath the wheels and the other on the driver's seat everybody got out to walk to the station, led by the porter, much burdened with hand-bags. The way seemed long through a maze of arcades when to our surprise we were ushered into the side entrance of the hotel we had left. Another team was ordered which took to the snow as calmly as reindeer, and hearing nothing further about the unusual season we reached the depot in time for the three o'clock train. Such is the margin allowed all over Europe by omnibuses running to stations. They do not catch trains here, but stand and wait as those to whom all things come. We have since learned that it sometimes snows in Burgos as late as June.

We had read that three-fourths of Spain was a high plateau, bleak and often arid with an elevation of 2,500 feet above the sea. We had even heard it called a desert; but no description could prepare the mind for what awaited us when fairly out of Burgos. Here it was all about us La Meseta! Unobserved in the lateness of our arrival the night before. But for the patches of snow I would have called it Syria or Sahara and strained my vision for camels. Far and away it stretched, brown devoid of life. With out a tree, without a brush, without a weed, without sod, without fodder, without stubble, without any sort of covering for the raw earth! Neither was there a farm house, nor a barn, nor a head of stock, nor shelter for any. The few streams were only visible as we crossed them; the few highways came from nowhere. Occasional villages there were scattered over the plain, hundreds of grey roofs like stony excrescences of an arid soil hidden by remains of ancient walls. Nor was the plain so properly a plain. Brown excoriated hills varied here and there singly or in ranges, and smaller mesas reared their levels upon the greater one.

At least one traveler was staggered by the sight. By nine o'clock we reached Segovia. Here the train stood unaccountably long. Dinner was over in the restaurant car. Passengers left their compartments and walked up and down in the corridors. Rumors began to circulate in all languages. A Spaniard with a few English words at his command and a few more French at length conveyed to us that the road was blocked by drifts in the Sierras and no trains could get through to Madrid. And presently the cars were side-tracked and all nationalities prepared to make themselves comfortable for the night. Having a compartment to ourselves this was not difficult; but in the morning the situation had not improved and Babel began again. No one could say when the line would open. The Spaniard could not tell the German, nor the German the Frenchman, nor the Frenchman the Russian, nor the Italian the few English persons on board. Two miles away upon the windy plain loomed Segovia, its towers rising above the walls. Some of the passengers elected to go there. Others, ourselves among them, chose to return to Valladolid, a much larger city, a hundred miles back, and thither we were carried in the afternoon without charge.

HEBRON HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Part of the members of the junior class are expected to finish the county teachers' examination at Newark Saturday.

A surprise party was given last week at the home of D. M. Geiger in honor of Mary Lou Geiger, freshman, and Mary Musselman, sophomore. A very delightful evening was spent by about 20 guests and all participated in a taffy pull. Refreshments were served during the evening and the time pleasantly spent in games. At a late hour the guests departed, thanking their hosts and hostesses for a very nice time. The young ladies, in whose home the party was given were the recipients of many beautiful presents, the occasion being in the nature of a birthday celebration.

The decision of the debate Saturday night was given in favor of the negatives by the following judges: Messrs. Allen, Baugman and Atwood. The question was: "Resolved, that the U. S. senators should be elected by the direct vote of the people."

An Arbor Day program will be given out on the high school grounds, April 1, and an address will be given by Mr. Allen. The usual ceremony of tree planting will be performed and a few select numbers will be given by all the grades. Everybody invited.

Miss Esther Seymour attended Grange meeting at Millersport on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Will Needham of O. M. U. was a high school visitor last Wednesday.

HAND CAUGHT IN BUZZ SAW AND MANGLED

Walter Sherman, a well known young man aged about twenty-one years, who lives with his parents, two and a half miles east of Newark, had the misfortune to meet with an accident Thursday afternoon. He was in the act of cutting a piece of wood with a buzz saw when his hand was caught in the saw and terribly mangled. The young man was brought to the city and taken to the Sanatorium, where Dr. B. F. Barnes and H. A. Baker were called. Upon making an examination of the young man's arm, it was decided to amputate the index and middle fingers, which was done. It is thought that the rest of the hand can be saved.

BROKEN LEG IS FASTENED WITH NEW BONE PLATE

Latest Surgical Appliance Called Into Requisition When David Martin Meets With Misfortune.

David Martin, a male employee of the Baltimore and O. Railroad, who lives in this city, had the misfortune to meet with a serious and painful injury, the result of a peculiar accident, about 11 o'clock Friday morning. Mr. Martin, at the time of the accident, was engaged in taking a large machine at the shops, when the heavy chain which is used in raising the machine broke, one of the pieces of chain flew back and striking Mr. Martin's leg below the knee, broke it as though it had been a pipe stem. Fellow employees who had witnessed the accident, called for the injured man and sent in a hurry call for Bowers' ambulance, which was soon at the scene of the accident. The injured man was rushed to the Sanatorium where Dr. Barnes fastened the fractured bone together by means of a bone plate, one of the latest surgical appliances, invented by Dr. Lane, one of the most celebrated surgeons of London, England.

DON'T SAY YOU'RE OLD

You only feel old. Digestive organs are weak—don't assimilate food as they used to. Other organs act more slowly and less effectually. Blood is thin and sluggish. Renewal of strength does not equal the wear and tear of your system. That's what makes you feel old. Nothing in the world will tone up and invigorate these weak, backsliding organs, make rich blood and create strength so quickly as Vinol.

Vinol is not a strong nostrum, simply the medicinal elements of the cod's liver, with the useless nauseating oil eliminated and tonic iron added. Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not make you stronger, feel younger and give you an added interest in life. F. D. Hall, Druggist, Newark, O.

Helpless Rheumatics "Quickest Way Out of Bed"

Muscle, Ind.—Considerable attention has been attracted to the case of a Muncie "rheumatic" who had long been in an almost helpless condition on account of his infirmity and who was enabled to discard his crutches after but a few days' use of an English preparation known as "Celmo." His own statement follows: "I was on crutches when I commenced taking Celmo and now I walk without crutch or cane. You are at liberty to use this statement to others, so that they may be cured also, as there are thousands today that need relief and Celmo is the quickest way out of bed."—Geo. W. Candler, 1632 West Seventh street.

Since its introduction in this country the name of "Celmo" has been spreading fast. We advise all sufferers to write for books about it to the Celmo Co., 206 Jefferson St., Chicago, or, better still, to obtain a package locally from Evans' Drug Store, Warden Hotel Block.

Splendid Values in WOMEN'S READY-TO-WEAR APPAREL

Stylish Easter Suits, Coats and Gowns await you here, priced very moderately at $12.50, $15.00, $17.50, $19.75, $22.50, $25.00, $28.50, $35.00 up to $47.50.

The distinctive military effect of many of these new styles will escape no woman's attention. The Coats are especially attractive with semi-fitted straight lines and very attractively trimmed. Many have the new long roll collars, mostly in harmonizing colors. Beautiful trimmings are also shown on the skirts—and in these the styles are more conservative than last season. Colors have never been more effectively used, especially the white and black combinations in checks and mixtures in men's wear materials. Hair line stripes are shown in many new suits of blue serge.

Serges of the qualities used in men's clothing have been widely favored on account of their splendid wearing qualities.

A COMPREHENSIVE EXHIBIT OF WOMEN'S EASTER AFTERNOON AND EVENING GOWNS. They are indescribably dainty and beautiful. The original designs are replete with the latest Parisian inspirations, and there is an exclusive air to the styles. In many styles there is a single model; in other styles there are a few of a kind, or again the styles are repeated in different colors.

Prices Are $7.95 to $37.50

DR. GEORGE W. FELS WELL KNOWN HERE DIES AT CINCINNATI

Word has been received here by friends of the death of Dr. George W. Fels, one of the most prominent Masons of Cincinnati, which occurred at 1201 Woodburn avenue, that city on Thursday, after an illness of some time with the grip, which finally terminated in pneumonia. The deceased was well known in Newark. He was a warm friend of Senator W. E. Miller, of this city. Only recently he had been elected to receive the thirty-third degree of Masonry. He was proprietor of the George Fels Dental Supply company, and was also president of the Economy Gas Heating and Supply company. The deceased was aged 62 years. Besides being a member of every division of the Masons, he was a prominent member of the Knights of Honor, Knights and Ladies of Honor, Knights of Pythias, and was the first Cincinnati member of the Royal Archmasons, of which he was the treasurer for many years. He is survived by his widow and son, Clifford G. Fels, and a daughter, Miss Edith Fels. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the Scottish Rite Cathedral, the services being conducted by the Rev. Mr. Eisenbach.

KIDNAPERS PAID $17,000 FOR BABY

Las Vegas, N. M., March 31.—Seventeen thousand dollars in small bills left in a remote spot in the mountains near here, ransom the baby of A. T. Robbins, a local attorney. The child was stolen three days ago and the above amount demanded with directions for its payment. Robbins complied with the demand and the child was returned today.

For Breakfast Try "Sunkist" Oranges

Luscious Tree-Ripened Fruit

It is not sufficient to know that oranges are the most healthful of all fruits. It is quite as important to know the kind of oranges that are most healthful and most palatable. The very finest California oranges are now packed under the label "Sunkist." Please serve "Sunkist" oranges at breakfast tomorrow and learn the superiority of tree-ripened, seedless, fiberless oranges over the commonplace kind. Don't fail to save the wrappers. There is so much "meat" and nourishment in "Sunkist" oranges and so little waste that, in addition to their extra fine flavor and goodness, they are really the most economical oranges to buy.

"Sunkist" Lemons Juiciest

Lemons differ as much as oranges. Pithy, thick-skinned lemons contain very little juice. You waste money when you buy them. Please ask for "Sunkist" Lemons and note how uniformly round each one is, and what a small percentage is skin and pith.

Get This Valuable Orange Spoon

Save 12 "Sunkist" orange (or lemon) wrappers and send them to us, with 12 cents to pay charges, packing, etc., and we will present you with a genuine Rogers Orange Spoon, of beautiful design and highest quality. Begin saving wrappers today. If you desire more than one, send 12 "Sunkist" wrappers and 12 cents for each additional spoon. In remitting, please send one-cent stamps when the amount is less than 24 cents; on amounts above 24 cents, we prefer money order, express order or bank draft. Don't send cash. We will be glad to send you complete list of valuable premiums. Honor both "Sunkist" and "Red Ball" wrappers for premiums.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH UNDER WHEELS OF INTERURBAN CAR

What might have resulted in a terrible accident and the loss of life, was averted by a very narrow margin on Thursday evening. Mr. B. F. Armstrong, the well known expressman of this city, accompanied by a friend, was driving north on Fourth street. The men were busily engaged in conversation and as the horse started to cross the electric railway the west bound 5:24 o'clock interurban car came along. Fortunately it was not running very fast and when it struck the wagon it merely pushed it along the tracks a few feet. No one was injured and no damage was done.

OBITUARY

MR. ETHAN HOWELL.

Mr. Ethan Howell died about three o'clock Friday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jerry Baker, 55 North First street, after an illness of some time with tuberculosis, aged about 22 years. He is survived by his father, three sisters and a brother. Two funeral services will be held at the home at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, conducted by the pastor of the Second M. E. church, of which he was a faithful member. The interment will be made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

REV. M. K. PASCO.

Mrs. Sarah J. Cherry has received word that her brother-in-law, the Rev. M. K. Pasco, had died at his home in Berea, Ky., Friday morning. The body will be brought to Newark Saturday afternoon, and taken to the home of Mrs. Cherry on West Locust street. The funeral will be held Sunday, and the interment will be made in Fairmount cemetery.

MRS. JAMES CANEDY.

Mrs. James Canedy, aged 68 years, died at her home in 426 Park avenue, Thursday evening at 7:15 o'clock, after an illness extending over only a week of pneumonia. She leaves three children, Mrs. Nettie Braman of this city and Orin E. Canedy and Everett H. Canedy of Columbus.

Mrs. Canedy was for a number of years an active member of the North Newark Christian Union church, and a faithful worker in all its enterprises. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the Christian Union church, Rev. Mr. Billings officiating, and interment will be made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

FUNERAL OF J. H. MOHLER.

The funeral of J. H. Mohler, a prominent citizen of Somerset, Perry county, was held in Somerset Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. He died very suddenly Tuesday from an attack of heart trouble. He was well known by many Newark people, having been engaged in the furniture business in Somerset for many years. He was an old soldier, having been a member of the 6th, 10th, 11th and 12th Regiments of the 1st New York Cavalry, and was a member of the 1st New York Cavalry, and was a member of the 1st New York Cavalry.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

—Story of the First Woodpecker

Bored for Everything It Has

"I DO NOT know whether this story is true or not," began daddy, "but at any rate it is an old, old story, and it is interesting to children for many, many years."

"The story tells about a fairy who went about the world doing good to people. He had a kind heart, and, like most good folks, he believed that every one else was good. He used to dress himself like a poor old man when he traveled in order not to let folks know that he was a fairy."

"One day just after the sun had set and it was still not dark enough to light the lamps the good fairy came to the door of a cottage and stopped to rest. He had traveled much that day, and he was cold and hungry. In the cottage was a woman baking cakes. She was not a very poor woman, for she was well dressed and had on her head a pretty red cap. The fairy asked her for permission to come in and rest by the warm fire. The woman looked up when he spoke at the door, but she was too busy with her cakes to answer, so she just nodded her head. The fairy entered and sat down. The woman took one glance at him. She thought he was just a poor man and paid no attention to him. After awhile he said:

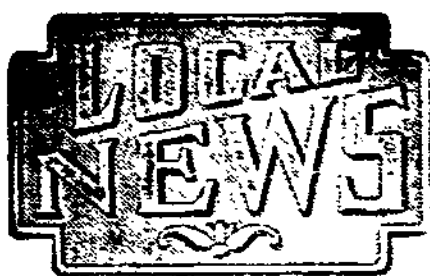

"My good woman, I am very hungry. Will you not give me a cake?"

"The woman looked up again. The cakes were large, and she did not want to give one of them away. So she took a smaller piece of dough and put it in the oven to bake. When that was baked she thought it was still too large to give away, so she made a still smaller cake. But when that was done she thought it was still too large, although you may imagine that by that time it was a very, very small cake indeed."

"When the fairy saw that the woman did not want to give him even the tiny cake he became very angry. He said:

"The cake is small, but it is not as small as your heart. Indeed, I do not think that you are a woman at all, for a true woman would feel sorry for a poor, hungry, tired traveler and would not measure the cakes to see that she did not give him one that was too large. You are a wicked woman, if you are a woman at all. I am not the poor man you take me to be, but a fairy, and the most powerful fairy in the world. Hereafter you shall not be a woman with all you wish to eat, but a bird that shall have to bore and bore and bore for everything it eats."

"After that time no one ever saw the woman again, but in the woods there appeared a new sort of bird with a red cap on its head which bored and bored into the trees as though it is seeking its food here."

THAT FEELING OF FULLNESS

Disappears in Five Minutes After Taking a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

A Trial Package Sent Free on Re- quest.

All of the unpleasant sensations attendant upon eating too heartily are instantly relieved by a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. Like sticking a pin into a rubber balloon. The reason is simple and easy to under- stand.

Inflation Of The Stomach From Undigested Food Quickly Relieved By A Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

When you take food into a stomach that is not used and overtaxed, the gastric juices do not form fast enough to digest it properly. So the food becomes sour and at once be- gins to throw off gases. Your stom- ach becomes inflated, just as surely as if you attached a toy balloon to a gas jet. Then the gases and food are forced forth and pollute your breath, making you an object of derision to your friends. Your tongue quickly becomes coated and you can taste the foulness that is within you.

Now all this condition is changed almost instantly by a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. This little digester is a busy at once—supplies all the digestive juices that are lacking, digests the food in a few minutes and opens up the clogged stomach and bowels. It also sweetens and refreshes the mucous lining of the stomach and bowels and restores peace and com- fort.

If you will give Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a chance, they will not only sweeten your stomach but also your disposition and you will never have another stomach ailment.

One grain of a single ingredient in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will di- gest 3,000 grains of food. This saves your stomach and gives it the rest it needs. All muscles require oc- casional rest if they are ever over- taxed. The stomach is no exception to this rule.

Try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and you will wonder how you ever got along without them. They are sold at 50 cents by all drug- gists everywhere. A trial package will be sent free on request to F. A. Stuart Co., 159 Stuart Bldg., Mar- shall, Mich.

AMUSEMENTS

Last Night's Play.

The leap into fame of Woods, Frazer and Lederer as producers was due last and foremost to "Madame Sherry," contributory to "Every Little Movement," and on Thursday Newark theatre-goers had the opportunity of witnessing for the first time this big success. Two performances were given at the Auditorium theatre yesterday, the matinee being a sort of "overflow" performance to accommodate those who could not obtain seats for the evening show.

"Madame Sherry" is one of the brightest and prettiest of musical shows that has visited this city. The producers do not call it a musical comedy or a comic opera, but a French vaudeville, and the reason for the latter is plain, as the plot is but the smallest kind of a thread holding together the various roles and incidents which go to make up the entertainment. The production is not elaborate from the size of the chorus, as there are but eight young women who participate in the choral numbers, but from the general effects, beautiful dancing, and pretty song numbers the show is delightful.

The idea which gives the show its cause or plot is not a new one. A bachelor acquires an imaginary family in order to secure money from a doting uncle. The uncle pays an unexpected visit to the home of his nephew and it is up to the latter to present this family. He secures a temporary one and the complication arising therefrom are irresistible amusing. Visiting with the uncle is a young girl just from the convent and she immediately falls in love with the nephew.

Miss Tessa Kosta is one of the most charming young women who has ever visited the Auditorium. Possessing exceptional beauty and grace she is also gifted with a beautiful soprano voice and a most charming personality in the role of Yvonne. In this role much ability as a dancer is required and one of Miss Kosta's prettiest song numbers is "The Birth of the Butterfly."

The melody "Every Little Movement" permeates the entire play and is taken up at intervals both in the dance and in the song. In this song Miss Mina Davis gave a delightful bit of aesthetic dancing in the first act. Two other beautiful dances are the "Birth of Passion" dance by Yvonne and Edward Sherry (Wm. Curtis) and the "Danger Dance" by Alice Hills and Joe Smith Marba. Edward M. Faxon has the comedy role and is exceptionally clever, making much of the expression, "I'm surprised." Assisting with the comedy work as Catherine, the housekeeper, and who later becomes, temporarily, Madame Sherry, was Miss Edith Sinclair.

The play is beautifully staged, the last set, the afterdeck of a yacht, eliciting applause as the curtain went up, and today everyone is humming. "Every little movement has a meaning all its own; every thought and feeling by some posture can be shown; every love thought that comes a-stealing must be revealing all its sweetness in some appealing little gesture all its own."

The Spendthrift.

When Porter Emerson Browne turned the manuscript of "The Spendthrift" over to Frederic Thompson he felt sure of a production that would be the very best and a company of players chosen with the greatest care. Mr. Thompson not only selected the cast for "The Spendthrift," but he staged the play himself and executed every bit of finesse. The production is wonderfully true to life and a masterpiece of detail.

They say practice makes perfect and if it may be applied to the stage, the production of "The Spendthrift" which comes here Saturday should be a capital performance.

The company which gave this strong drama at the Hudson theatre in New York for five months comes here. Edmund Breese and Miss Thais Magrane head the cast. Miss Magrane is the exceptionally clever young actress who rose to prominence in the first presentation of "The Spendthrift." There are six other well known metropolitan players besides.

"The best for little" is an expression that might be used in connection with the coming of "The Spendthrift." The cast which presented this latest Porter Emerson Browne drama at the Hudson theatre in New York for five months will be seen here. Edmund Breese and Miss Thais Magrane head the list of well known metropolitan players. Miss Magrane is the young California actress, who has made an enviable reputation for herself in this play. "The Spendthrift" comes here for a special engagement of two performances on Saturday, matinee and night, April 1.

Girls.

The attraction at the Auditorium Tuesday, April 4 will be Clyde Fitch's remarkable comedy success, "Girls," which played for one whole year at Baly's theatre, New York. "Girls" is a comedy satirizing the bachelor girl, her aims and ambitions, and her utter defeat when brought face to face with love. There are three girls in the comedy, all bachelor girls, living a precarious existence in a studio apartment in New York. One is secretary to a law firm, one is a stenographer and the third is a "stage-struck" girl. They swear never to marry, but when a good looking man enters their apartments by mistake each begins to think of love. In the second act they all obtain positions, but subsequently lose them, on account of their independence. The third act finds them living in greater poverty than ever, but each in turn is won over by the right man. The three romances are closely interwoven and there is in addition an abundance of humor, character study and observance of the foibles of the sex.

The Merry Widow.

"The Merry Widow," that famous operetta by Franz Lehár, the Viennese composer, is coming to the Auditorium theatre Wednesday, April 4, flying the banner of Henry W. Savage. And it goes without saying this will be the theatrical event of the season. The role of Sonia, the widow, will be played by Frances Cameron, who last season appeared with success in the western company. George Danerel, who has been the Danilo in the New York and Chicago company, will be seen here in that character. Among the other principals to be seen with this organization, and who have been connected with companies that appeared in New York and Boston, are Harry Burgess, who will be seen as Popou, the Marsovan ambassador; Arthur Woodley as again the Nash, "If I may say so," and F. W. Shackelford as the Camille de Jondou; Bessie Abbott will sing the role of Olga and Mabel Arzella that of Natalie. Ada St. Albans dances the role of Fiti. The special orchestra is under the direction of Alfred Moulton.

The Melting Pot.

Walker Whiteside, supported by a company of talented players, comes to the Auditorium theatre April 6 in Israel Zangwill's play, "The Melting Pot." This play is one of the real sensations in theatrical circles, and has created discussion and interest that are steadily growing in scope and intensity. The play carries with it moments and situations of great dramatic worth and the story is one that can readily be appreciated by any of the citizens of this country, which is typified as the greatest melting pot of the world.

Madame X.

Coming to the Auditorium theatre on Friday evening, April 7, for one performance.

So accurately reproduced is the trial scene in the last act that "Madame X," which Henry W. Savage is soon to offer here, is said to possess all the fascinating elements of a real French murder trial.

The scenery employed in Henry W. Savage's production of "Madame X," Bison's celebrated emotional drama soon to be seen here, is an exact copy of that used in Paris for the French version of the play. The artists who painted it were sent to Paris, that they might catch the spirit of the original, and George Marion, who staged the piece, visited Paris to study the original French production in detail.

Launching An Ocean Giant.

It took just 62 seconds for 22 tons of grease and the opening of a valve to launch the Olympic, the world's greatest ocean liner. This record and process have been vividly recorded in Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival, which will be presented at the Auditorium theatre on an early date.

The last structure with a length of 882 ft. 6 in. over all and a breadth over the boat deck of 94 ft.; her displacement, 66,000 tons, and her gross register tonnage, 45,000 tons, is the largest, heaviest and strongest ship in existence. Its production is the first that has been followed by the moving picture camera, each step in the making being photographed for scientific record.

The Newlyweds and Their Baby.

"The Newlyweds and Their Baby," which enjoys such tremendous success everywhere, has been secured for a date by Manager Shea of the Auditorium theatre. The date will be announced shortly.
